overuse the truth and deny justice. Edgeworth used his audition later that day to launch an accusation about Blaise as the real killer and the driver of a black market auction of police evidence. Courtney subtly helped Edgeworth let witnesses speak when Blaise tried to close them. She claimed she was just trying to destroy all the possibilities for Edgeworth to never oppose the P.I.C. again. She turned against Blaise and revealed her discoveries about the Incident IS-7. That helped Edgeworth prove Blaise's fault. John's main article]] The Grand Turnabout Blaise has not yet been made, however. His lackeys kidnapped John to blackmail Courtney to acquit Roland. Edgeworth found out about it and tracked John while Courtney tied the trial. Sebastian sued the trial and confronted his father after a connection was found between him and Roland. This led to the trial ending with Roland on the way to a conviction. Immediately after the trial, Interpol agent Shi-Long Lang took Courtney and John to the film studio for John's film, where Di-Jun Huang's body had been found earlier that day. The president had never departed the elevator, making Courtney a suspect. However, Courtney refused to explain his reasons for meeting the president. However, a connection was made between the President's death and the SS-5 Incident. In the re-investigation course of the SS-5 Incident, the relationship between Huang and John was revealed. It was also discovered that the president had actually been killed by the murderer Sirhan Dogen during the SS-5 Incident, and replaced by a double body. This information led to the discovery that Simon Keyes had killed the double body and orchestrated the murders of Knightley and Crane. Then, Dogen arrived to protect Keyes from another killer, and offered John a chance to get revenge. John refused, saying that would only satisfy him while hurting his mother. Courtney later gave Edgeworth his badge back after he decided on his own way to save people by confronting contradictions in the law. John later bought three lion lilies; Two in memory of his biological parents, with the latter representing Courtney, his adoptive father. Personality]] Mugshot. Courtney is very well spoken, polite and calm a but also formidable and with a strong justice. When challenged, it is a and extremely calculi rival, able to easily adapt their theories to new evidence. She has an almost religious devotion to the law, often referring to the "Goddess of the Law" and using many religious phrases. She's very protective of her son, and carries a assorted of photographs of her acting career in her person. Courtney believed that emotions were a weakness and not the very one of a judge, who had to be impartial. He used his Stoic personality as a shield to protect her. However, this character fell when it was about protecting John, which led her to dramatically change her personality. She came to learn that emotions and personal ties are not weaknesses, but sources of strength. She always looked forward to seeing John's performance in the movies he was in. She made a conscious effort to avoid learning something about John's films before she saw them herself. Name]] Hakari (かかり) means "scale", which reflects his career as a judge. It is also similar in pronunciation to "hikari" (光), which means "light". "Mikagami" means "water mirror" - the mirror being a symbol of divine wisdom in Japanese mythology and the basis for the badges judges use in Japan. His English name in the English translation is "Justine Courtney", probably intended to be a play on "justice" and "tribunal", as well as "court of justice", all of which reflect his position as a judge. Development]] Instead of "Objection!". Courtney uses "Indeferred!" (あゝ! "Kyakka!"). Courtney is a remarkably educated person, using "watakushi", the most educated Japanese pronoun first person, and mainly using the "-sama" particle to address others. To date, Courtney is the only judge to appear in the Ace Attorney series, as well as one of the only three judges to have a known name, being Mael Stronghart and Seishirou Jigoku of The Great Ace Attorney Chronicles the only other examples to date. Courtney is the second judgesan©rie to utter a verdict of "Guilty" that is not © later annulled, following the modern modern era Courtney Á© the only judge until © the moment he has not pleaded guilty to murder or conspiracy to commit. Compromise.
